

PRODUCT BRIEF

820 Nano SOM

OVERVIEW

The 820 Nano SOM from Mistral is an easy to use, ultra-compact, light-weight System on Module providing very high processing power. The SOM is based on Qualcomm Snapdragon 820 and is ideal for advanced, next-gen embedded applications. With a PCB size of just 51mm x 26mm, this is one of the smallest Snapdragon based SOMs available in the market currently.

Equipped with powerful specifications and features, the 820 Nano SOM is ideal for designs requiring 4K Ultra HD HEVC (H.265) video and graphics processing, wireless connectivity, low power consumption and advanced processing power. The feature-rich 820 Nano SOM supports latest features like Type-C functionality, 4K Encode/Decode and integrated 9-axis MEMS on a very small footprint, making it ideal for several powerful applications.

Based on a complete "System on Module" architecture, the 820 Nano SOM consists of the 64-bit quad-core Qualcomm® Kryo™ CPU, 2.2GHz capable of 4K Encode/Decode, 3/4GB LPDDR4, 32/64GB UFS and with major interfaces available via inter-board connectors. Application Development on the 820 Nano SOM is enabled with Android and Embedded Linux through a feature-rich carrier board that enables prototyping in record time. Optional Adaptor boards like LCD, Camera, Sensors and Battery Charger are also available for increased scope of development around the 820 Nano SOM.

The 820 Nano SOM is ideal for designing products like wearable computers, camera solutions, media gateways, Infotainment, drones, assistive devices and other smart gadgets requiring small package and high processing power.
